—AND SOME VERSE

A Merchant's Morning Prayer

Once more the sun's well-ordered way

Has ushered in another day,

And humbly, Lord, to thee I pray

all trustfully.

Give me strength for all apportioned work

At one with thee—nor let me shrink

The tasks a wayward spirit lark too easily.

Be mine to make an honest plan,

Justly to treat my fellow man,

Nor with distrust a neighbor scan suspiciously.

And let me aid all those who need

A cheery smile or friendly deed,

Eliminating class and creed, wholeheartedly.

So when its course the day has run

To restful night, may I be one

Whose conscience whispers: "Duty done"—approvingly.

TEMPERATURES TO GO UP TO 10 ABOVE TONIGHT

Most of State Is Covered With Ice Coating

SLEET STORM GENERAL

City's Traffic Problem Handled Largely by Taxis Today

With the temperature at 4 degrees above zero last night, enough sleet fell to leave a coating of ice an inch thick over Columbia. The state, as a whole, is ice-covered also, reports from the U. S. Weather Bureau say. The temperature here at 11 o'clock this morning was 8 degrees, but according to Weather Bureau reports, the mercury will rise to 10 or 12 above zero tonight.

The sleet storm last night was part of a storm that covered a large part of the United States. This unexpected cold snap caused many calls for first aid for frozen pipes this morning, according to local plumbers. The entire plumbing system in one Columbia home was frozen this morning, but most of the calls were for outside hydrants, seldom used at this time of year.

Taxi riding was the popular outdoor sport of Columbia citizens today, say managers and drivers of the local companies who missed breakfast and haven't stopped their motors all day.

With slippery pavements and walks the city decided this morning to let the taxi companies decide the traffic problems. Almost no one has taken out his own machine today, a local taxi company manager said.

Taxicabs were filled with gas and oil at 5 o'clock this morning and the motors have not stopped since. Calls came in such volume this morning at the beginning of working hours that no definite time for the answering of a call could be promised. This condition lasted until late in the morning.

No wrecks reported.

Despite the slick pavements no calls have been made by the wreckers of garages at noon today. Not enough people took out their machines this morning to cause any serious traffic difficulties.

Drivers of one of the local taxi companies worked in relays this morning. Relief men were sent out in order that the other drivers would have time to warm before going out again. Calls were answered several at a time rather than the usual order of one call to each cab.

Buses on all lines were running on schedule today with heavy chairs with the exception of the Pickwick-Greyhound bus scheduled to leave here for St. Louis at 7:15 o'clock this morning. It was due here from Kansas City last night at 11 o'clock, but was held at Booneville.

No accidents had been reported on highways 40 or 63 up to 2 o'clock this afternoon.

SUB-ZERO COLD WAVE PREVAILS IN SOUTHWEST

Wind Adds to Suffering—7 Below in Omaha

AIR MAIL TRAFFIC STOPS

Wheat in Nebraska and Kansas Reported Damaged

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 25 (U.P.).—Ice temperatures prevailed in the Southwest today as a cold wave continued with increased fury.

Lowest temperatures of the winter were recorded in sections of the Southwest, and a cold northwest wind added to the suffering, numbing pedestrians.

Skies were clear today but unsettled weather that may bring a slight relief from the cold, was forecast for tomorrow.

A low of 7 degrees below zero at 7 a. m. was reported at Omaha, and the thermometer was continuing its drop. Unless a warm sun came out, the mercury was expected to go down to 10 below.

Other places in Nebraska reported sub-zero temperatures. Spaulding reported 16 below; Central City, 10 below; Columbus, 8 below; North Platte, 5 below.

Intense cold also gripped Kansas with Goodland reporting 6 below; Concordia, 2 below and Topeka, one below.

Reports from Nebraska and Kansas indicated that the sub-zero weather did some damage to winter wheat fields. Livestock also suffered.

The cold wave extended as far east as Des Moines and as far south in this section as Dallas. The Texas capital reported 7 below zero while Dallas had a low reading of 20 above. Amarillo, Tex., reported 2 above.

As the mercury bobbed again, some telephone and telegraph wires were snapped but communication companies said they were experiencing little trouble. Trolley wires snapped on several Omaha street car lines, delaying traffic.

Air mail traffic between Chicago and Rock Springs, Wyo., was abandoned, but planes were flying on regular schedule through Kansas City, which had a low of zero.

The day was the worst of the winter for motorists who experienced difficulty in preventing their radiators from freezing and batteries were overtaxed in turning over motors in which oil had frozen solid.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Robertson Held in San Antonio

SAY THEY MARRIED HERE

Attempt to Cash Check of Hold-up Victim Leads to Arrest

Alonso P. Robertson, Jr., of Frankford, Mo., and his wife Marie Louise, who say they were married while students in the University last November, were indicted with another couple by the Bexar County Texas, jury yesterday on charges of robbery by assault in connection with the hold-up of G. L. Powell of San Antonio on Jan. 14.

Friends say that Robertson previously attended Missouri Military Institute, and that he was in the advanced course of the R. O. T. C.

Mrs. Robertson, said that she had attended the University where her 21-year-old husband was a junior in the School of Business and Public Administration last fall. Believing that greater opportunities awaited them in the South they went to San Antonio.

Powell is alleged to have been assaulted when $1.50 in change and a check for $27 were taken from him. The couple were traced after one of the women and a man attempted to cash Powell's check at a hotel where he was known.

No marriage license certificate was issued for Robertson here.

University records show that Robertson was dropped from the University in 1928-27 because of scholastic difficulties. He was enrolled in the College of Arts and Science last fall on probation as a freshman. He was employed as a house boy in the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity before leaving school. His departure was not made known to University authorities.
